

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Address to the Public.

THE man who exerts himself to encrease the general stock of useful information, or who endeavours to enhance, vary, or multiply the innocent amusements and enjoyments of life, has a claim to the patronage and support of the public. How far either of these desirable ends are promoted by the "Arrangement of Provincial Coins," &c. now ushered into the world, I leave to the candid and unprejudiced to determine. Much obliging aid has been imparted to me by several Gentlemen, to whom my particular and sincere thanks are due; one of whom (the late James Wright, Esq.) very politely favoured me with the following Preface, upon which I shall forbear any comment; but submit to my impartial readers, how far the importance of the study is by it unfolded, and the particular merits and defects of the pieces described, fairly appreciated.

The arrangement of the Counties in Great Britain, with the Towns in each separately, has been adopted, as combining usefulness with clearness of method. Ireland, and the different Colonies, are separated from Great Britain; and in another chapter are classed alphabetically, such Medalets, &c. as have no particular reference nor allusion to any specific County, City, or Town, by which posterity can be supposed posed to trace where the proprietor resided; and herein, under the general term British, are comprised the different pattern Pieces for National Coinage, as well as others that have a particular reference to Great Britain. In some other Medalets contained in this chapter, the most important circumstance, as constituting its designation for arrangement, is adopted, such as Portraits on the pieces of Howard, Newton, and others: the idea of Industry is chiefly conveyed by the Halfpenny bearing a Bee-hive, "Industry has its sure reward," &c. A vast number of Varieties having been created by several dealers conjointly, from dies fabricated on purpose to impose upon collectors, one of each of the original Pieces is retained in the general Arrangement, and the remaining Intermixtures are placed in alphabetical order at the end of the work, merely to certify their existence.

I have in my possession fifty-five different American Pieces, some minted there, and others in Great Britain; several of which, circulated in this country, were improperly included in the lists that have been published, as the Medalet of "Washington," "United States," "New York Tokens;" but such are wholly omitted in this Arrangement. They may be collected as American Pieces, but can never be regarded as British.*

*Having received a few Coins whilst the work was printing, too late for insertion in their proper places, a small Appendix has been found necessary, in which particular reference is made to where they should be placed, that the arrangement in the cabinet may not be injured by it; it is likewise necessary to mention that the difference of metals is specified only where it is not copper.

With the assistance I have received, and the care bestowed to render it complete, I hope this work will be found the most perfect of its kind which has hitherto appeared.

BY THE LATE

James Wright, Esq. of Dundee.

THE UTILITY of Medals has been demonstrated by many of the most eminent writers of the present Century, which has been justly termed the "Augustan Age" of modern Europe, for the liberal encouragement and cultivation of every elegant art. Much has been written concerning the pleasure and amusement which result from the study and the possession of Coins and Medals. To such as are devoted to this innocent and laudable pursuit; who by it have extended their knowledge, refined their taste, and experienced the joys of the fond and successful collector, it were superfluous to enlarge.

"As some lone miser, visiting his store

"Bends at his treasure, counts, recounts it o'er;

"Hoard after hoard his rising raptures fill." (a)

But to others who may have disdained or neglected this beneficial study; and in consequence, are ignorant of its merits, and of the high degree of innocent and instructive occupation occupation which it affords, it may be important to notice that the celebrated names of the Emperor Charles V, Petrarch, our own Charles I. and II, Cromwell, the great painter Rubens, the sublime artist Michael Angelo, Jameson the Vandyck of Scotland, the accomplished Sir Hans Sloane, the learned Camden, the elegant Addison, Lord Orford, Dr. William Hunter, besides those of many other respectable and learned personages both dead and living, are to be classed among the collectors and lovers of Medals. In Italy, France, and Germany the attachment to this branch of science has always been carried to a much greater height than with us. Mr. Pinkerton informs us, from Goltzius, of the amazing number of cabinets formed in those countries; infers that in each they must have greatly exceeded those of Britain at every period; and acquaints us that an accomplished French Gentleman (b) of large fortune felt this attachment so powerfully, as to continue to write on the subject (by a singular contrivance) after he had lost his eye-sight in the infirmities of age. — His whole works were published at Paris from 1762 to 1778, consisting of ten large quartos. A singular, but authentic anecdote is recorded of the learned physician and medallist Vaillant, to whom, according to Voltaire, France is indebted for the science of medals, as Louis XIV was for one half of his vast cabinet, to which succeeding monarchs have added, and which is said to be still carefully preserved in the great hall of the national museum. During one of his voyages into Greece, made for the purpose of collection, in returning to Marseilles, a corsair appeared in sight of the vessel which bore him. M. Vaillant, alarmed for his treasure, speedily selected and swallowed twenty of his most beautiful Greek coins. A change of wind, however, relieved him from his anxieties ; and the fond antiquary, after suffering much distress from several ounces of ancient metal, recovered the pieces in a natural manner in the neighbourhood of Lyons. ✓

Such extreme attachment cannot possibly be excited, but where there exists a very high degree of esteem for its object ; nor shall we wonder that this esteem should be great, if we coolly appreciate the real dignity and usefulness of COINS and MEDALS, which aspire to some striking and superlative characteristics. — Taken collectively, ancient and modern, they form the most numerous, the most various, the most valuable, the most durable (c), and, perhaps in some instances, the most exquisitely finished (d) of any class of the productions

(c) The writer of this preface is possessed of Greek Coins unquestionably struck five hundred years previous to the Christian æra, in as good preservation as when they were formed from the rude metal ; and in the late Dr. Hunter's and the Earl of Pembroke's cabinets, there are perfect pieces fabricated nine hundred years before that epoch.

(d) Mr. Pinkerton seems to want words to express his admiration, when speaking in his Essay, of the astonishing Workmanship of some of the Greek Medals ; one of Icetas of Syracuse, he says, "is a perfect gem and surpasses all description." And some of the earliest Greek gold coins in Dr. Hunter's cabinet, classed among the incerti, he says are of a fabric which "sets all modern imitation at defiance." It may be asked whether the most finished productions of Simon, done for Cromwell, or the late elaborate Medal by Kuchler, on the naval victory gained by Earl Howe on the 4th of June, 1794, equal these ? We may at least affirm that they are not inferior to the finest specimens in any other line of the valuable art of engraving. ✓

tions of human invention.—They are the most faithful of all recorders ; the cheapest, most minute, and portable of all pictures ; they have greatly elucidated history ; they have raised our estimation of the state of arts, taste, and ingenuity in ancient Greece and Rome ; and if patronized by the wealthy, if well designed and well executed during the present age in Britain, they will form a true mirror of the existing features of the times, and hand down to posterity the well-earned reputation of our islanders for industry, commerce, and arts, while the globe continues to revolve.

This may be deemed strong language, and perhaps be derided by some as extravagant. But I claim the justice of a cool and considerate investigation of every position made, and of every epithet applied to the objects of this study ; and then, I humbly ask if it be possible that any one of them can be disproved, or shewn to be inapplicable ?

The right of coinage appears almost always to have been authorized by Law, and invested in the Executive Power of every nation and people, from the days when the names of the Archons appeared on the tetradrachmas of Athens, to the period of the last struck shilling of George the third. The most remarkable exceptions are, in ancient mintages, those of the patrician families in the Roman Republic, who, as far as I have read, were not by the Roman law accountable to the state, for the purity and weight of their Denarii ; and in modern times, the tradesmen's tokens of the last century, and the PROVINCIAL COINS of the present day. The latter, including MEDALETS of certain sizes, form the subject of the following arrangement.

Provincial Coins and Tokens (or pledges for value) of tradesmen, and small Medals, or Medalets bearing various devices devices and allusions, have of late years become numerous beyond all precedent in this country; and some of them being of interesting design and elegant execution, besides having keenly awakened the undistinguishing rage of the mere virtuoso, have very much attracted the attention of lettered medallists, and gentlemen of taste in the arts. We find also that several Lists have already been attempted to be made of them; of those, Mr. Birchall's of Leeds, though far from being strictly Medallie in the form of its arrangement, is the least exceptionable. Great numbers of them have been engraved, and published in plates by Mr. Pye of Birmingham, and Mr. Denton of London. Several Essays concerning them have also been published in the most respectable literary journals of the time; but as these are in every person's hands, or easily accessible, few extracts are proposed to be given from them; a list of them however is subjoined (e), wherein they are numbered for the purpose of reference. Nor shall we be surprized by these effects; nor by the attention paid to these pieces, if their importance be fairly estimated. Above two thousand varieties are described in this book, all struck within the last

✓ last twenty years; from which if we make a large deduction for those which are contemptible in design; rude in workmanship; or of that description justly stigmatized by the writers of the Essays marked 1, 2, and 3, as consisting of the most trifling varieties, formed by crossing dies which conjoin absurd and incongruous obverses and reverses, changing dates, &c. with a view to derive a little paltry profit from a few collectors, who it is to be regretted should encourage such impositions; still perhaps one third of the number are worthy the notice of every medal-list of judgment. These, in the Essay marked 6, in the note, are divided into six descriptions, viz.

- “ 1. Such as have views of remarkable buildings.
 - “ 2. Those which afford representations of great and “ useful commercial and public works.
 - “ 3. Some exhibiting striking emblems of the industrious “ genius of this country.
 - “ 4. Portraits of illustrious men.
 - “ 5. Historical events, and characteristics of political “ parties.
 - “ 6. Curious representations of animals, landscapes, &c.”

Since that paper was published, very few additions have been made to the 2d, 4th, or 5th classes; but considerable enlargements have appeared of the 3d and 6th; and very great and numerous accessions have been made by the 1st. Pieces have been struck bearing exact representations of almost every public building in London, Coventry, Birmingham, and Dundee; beside sketches of many edifices in other cities and provincial towns. Thus a general view of the state of Architecture in Great Britain is exhibited; the preservation preservation of which, at the distant future period when three or four thousand years shall have elapsed, (should the world last as long, the pieces may,) must be of extreme utility and value to posterity.

How doubly precious must ancient Coins now have been ✓ to us, had they given faithful representations of the temple of Solomon at Jerusalem, of Diana at Ephesus, of the Colossus at Rhodes, and of all the principal structures in Thebes, Palmyra, Persepolis, Athens, and Rome!—The time may come, when our posterity will be as much interested concerning the form of St. Paul's church, as we are to ascertain what were the real proportions of the tower of Babylon.

To those who may have studied and collected ancient and modern series~~es~~, but have disdained the recently issued provincial Coins and Medalets, it may be stated, that if even one third of the number arranged by the Editor, be allowed, as has been assumed, to be estimable from variety of design, interesting objects represented, or good execution; can the same be justly said of a like number of any series, in any metal, of any of the national coinages of kings in modern Europe, from the days of Cunobeline to those of His present Majesty? I am far from wishing to depreciate such series~~es~~, and am aware of their usefulness to the Antiquary and Historian; but the reply which every reader intelligent in the subject, and unfettered by prejudice, must give to this query, may reflect no small consequence on the subject of this book.

Architects may consult their interest in forming collections of these pieces; accurate though minute elevations being now given on them of several hundreds of edifices throughout throughout the Kingdom. Hints even from the general form of many of these might be useful, and are not to be obtained otherways but at a great expence. It will be invariably found that commerce and the arts, have in every state flourished in proportion to the diffusion of knowledge and learning; and there can be no doubt that the Medallie Study might be rendered advantageous to the meanest artificer, from the variety of models and designs to be drawn from its objects.

The "Arrangement" judiciously made, in distinguishing the Counties, and comprehending separately the Towns of each, may assist the memory of the Coin-collector in provincial Geography.

✓ In this "Age of Calculators (f)," it may enhance the estimation of the importance of this subject in many, to be told that, taking an average of different statements made by various intelligent persons in correspondence with the writer, not less than a capital of £.300.000 has been expended by companies and individuals, on the whole mass of private coinage, of which specimens are described by Mr. Conder.

✓ This Preface might be swelled, by pointing out the various defects in the degraded two thirds of the subjects of the Editor's "Arrangement;" but it is not written so much to discuss the merits and defects of pieces already struck, as to suggest improvement in future mintage; and in the hope that this Book may revive in a subsequent edition, and describe many pieces, superior to those whose varieties now fill its pages. And there is another view in which, as has been observed, the whole may be divided into two classes, viz. those intended for circulation, as pledges of value; and those that have been made for sale to collectors. The Halfpennies of Anglesey, Macclesfield, Edinburgh, Dundee, Cronebane, and several others, formed originally a good and respectable medium; and were even heavier than any coin of that denomination, that had ever previously issued from our national mint. But it is well known that the obligation to pay was in a short time evaded, and the country speedily inundated by the basest imitations of them; some made payable every where, others no where, and all diminished in purity and weight. The massy national coinage, however, now on the anvil of fabrication for Government, by that ingenious and useful member of society Mr. Boulton, is likely soon to supplant the whole.

Of the second species, it must be observed, that, as they may still continue to be struck, but must always be sold by dealers at prices considerably above their intrinsic worth, in order to defray the expence of dies, &c. it were far better that fewer should be issued, but the fabric of these few improved, and their designs varied. More subjects might be introduced from the 2d, 4th, and the historical part of the 5th descriptions already commended. The patronage of persons of taste and fortune can alone effect this desirable object. The York halfpenny, bearing the head of Constantine, the elegant Evesham penny, the latest Coventry(g) tokens,

(g) It is said Mr. Sharp of that city, a respectable gentleman, furnishes the designs, and aids the sale of those beautiful pieces, which confer honour on the Artist Mr. Kempson; who has lately struck a piece of much dignity, intitled, "The Penny of Scotland," bearing the bust of Dr. Smith; and commenced a set of Gloucester Medalets, wherein strength

There is a third class - these are the most numerous, many of which are in the hands of the public, and some of them are in the hands of the private collector.

There have been some of these in the hands of the public, but they are now in the hands of the private collector.

P R E F A C E.

✓ tokens, and a few others of superior workmanship, evince what may be done in this way. Some of the most recent pieces, hastily finished in the metropolis, can only impress a lasting stain upon the reputation of those who issue them: or perhaps rather afford a deplorable evidence of their poverty, and form a reproach against their opulent countrymen, by whom the necessary patronage is ungenerously withheld.

✓ In future improvement, however, great attention should be paid to the selection of those objects which this mode of representation is best calculated to exhibit. Such are portraits, figures of animals and birds, houses, public buildings, mills, bridges, ships, barges, and various utensils of husbandry, fishing, and commerce; of all those the die is competent to perpetuate the present forms. In landscape, however, and the discrimination of receding objects, this art may perhaps be considered as deficient. A rude view of hills and dales was attempted on the reverse of a medal of Shakespear by Dassier, "Wild above rule or art;" but it certainly fulfils the legend more literally than the designer intended. Even in the large medal struck to commemorate the brilliant defence of Gibraltar, and the destruction of the Spanish gun boats in 1782; wherein the promontory, Beach,

✓ of engraving is united with elegance. It were ungenerous to omit giving due praise to the performances of Mr. Milton. The minute and successful labour bestowed on his Coins for Barbadoes, Ipswich Penny, the piece having the head of Wallace—Reverse—"SCOTIA RUINATA," and some others, ranks them high among the best productions of modern art. Mr. Hancock must also be mentioned, as the artist who first gave a form of strength and durability to private mintage, in his fabrications of the original coinages of Anglesey, Cronebane, and Edinburgh.

fleets, and a considerable extent of the coast of Spain are represented in a bird's-eye view; although we must applaud the execution of this superb evidence of the modern artist's merit, may it not be humbly asked, whether the gentlemen who designed it have not endeavoured to strain the art of the die-sinker beyond its powers? A correspondent of distinguished taste has just observed to me, that in such provincial coins as give landscapes, there is peculiar imperfection. "The more distant objects," he writes, specifying some pieces, "are sufficiently diminished in proportion; so much strength of engraving, however, is necessary to ensure durability, that the whole is brought too near the eye. The defect appears to be in the art (b), not in the artist."

It may be further observed, that it were desirable, the words, "Token — Penny — Halfpenny — Payable on demand," &c. were now abandoned; as those are all expressive of the pieces which bear them being intended as money, or pledges to pass in exchange. But now, that the reality is abolished, why should the affectation of this continue; and posterity be deceived, both as to the extent and variety of provincial coinage? The offspring of the mint should be faithful recorders, and speak nothing but the truth. Either no designation whatever should be given, or that of "Medalet" adopted.

The combined efforts of men in association for the cultivation

(b) Perhaps some of the Medals by the Hamerni, and some of the best of those by the artists of Louis XIV. rescue the art from this imputation. Good perspective in it seems to be difficult, but is not unattainable.

P R E F A C E.

vation of literature and the fine arts, have been considered by many enlightened persons as calculated to produce great effects. Hence the formation of the many literary societies in Europe, towards the close of the last, and during this century. The fruits of such combinations have been very great and valuable; but I have read of no society formed to promote the science and execution of Medals, except that under Louis XIV, wherein a body of ingenious men received salaries for this purpose; and Mr. Addison acknowledges in his third Dialogue (after pointing out several defects in the pieces struck by them) that, at the time when he wrote,—“ this series was the most perfect of any among the moderns, in the beauty of the work, the aptness of the device, and the propriety of the legend.”

In the present circumstances of our public exigencies, new establishments of this sort are not, perhaps, reasonably to be expected from Government. But I may be permitted to suggest the formation of a Society in London, under the designation of THE MEDALLIC SOCIETY OF BRITAIN.

It might be proposed—first—that the principal object of the Society be the cultivation of elegant design and execution in Medals; and that they employ artists to strike Medals commemorating various interesting productions, characters, and events relative to Britain. For this purpose, the Society should have funds, raised by the subscription of the members, on the admission of new associates, and by annual contribution. But it would be a considerable reduction of expence, and great benefit to the study, if when any Medal were struck, after each member had received one specimen, the remainder of the impression were sold, at a moderate price to dealers; and the the encreasing taste which performances of ingenuity and dignity, under such patronage, would produce, must also likely occasion an extensive sale.

Second, this might also be a literary and scientific body ; and hold periodical meetings for the discussion and investigation of all subjects relative to Coins and Medals, ancient and modern. This might lead to the occasional publication of Medallie Transactions, embellished by many curious and useful designs : and the initials denoting a fellow of this Society, would of course become a literary honour.

These are the outlines of a scheme ; but much enlargement, improvement, and the arrangement of many minutiæ would be required to give it existence and effect.

I know no objection that may be made to these proposals, so weighty as that suggested by the present state of the times, and the gloom which pervades the minds of many, from the pressure of national and private difficulties. But it may be recollected that large sums of money have been, and likely will continue to be given in the patronage of painting, drama, and music. Even a small proportion of such expenditure, directed to the object proposed, would have great effects.

It is to be hoped, and earnestly wished, that some of the distinguished patrons of the arts in Britain would take this subject into consideration. By fostering a taste for well-designed and highly finished Medals, they might indulge some of the worthiest feelings of human nature, in the benevolent patronage of poor and meritorious artists ; they might delight and instruct future ages ; and render permanent the most important characteristics of the present, by exhibiting in those durable monuments, the emblems of
